dlp.gov.ky

Introduction

In recognition of changes in economic and social conditions, the minimum wage has been adjusted, effective 1 January 2026.

This document has been prepared to provide clear guidance to employers, employees, and the public on the updated wage levels and the continued importance of compliance with the Act.

How much is the National Minimum Basic Wage?

Starting 1 January 2026, the National Minimum Basic Wage in the Cayman Islands will be CI$8.75 per hour (before deductions).

The National Minimum Basic Wage payable to a service employee of an employer that has in place a scheme for the distribution of gratuities will be CI$6.56/hour (before deductions).

When does the National Minimum Basic Wage officially come into effect?

1 January 2026.

Is the National Minimum Basic Wage figure what an employee would earn before health and pension deductions?

Yes, this is the rate before applicable pension and health insurance deductions.

Is every employer required to pay the National Minimum Basic Wage?

Every employer must pay at least the National Minimum Basic Wage, unless they are exempted.

Does the National Minimum Basic Wage apply to all industries and job types?

Yes, unless specifically exempted.

Who is exempted from being paid the National Minimum Basic Wage?

The National Minimum Basic Wage does not apply to:

- Self-employed persons
- Juveniles (a person under the age of seventeen years, who is required by law to attend school)
- Charitable Organisations (one accepted and registered as such by the Director of the Department of Labour and Pensions)
- Churches

Are there special calculations for certain job types?

Yes. There are special calculations for:

- Service Employees who work for an employer with a registered gratuities scheme that has been approved in writing by the Director of the Department of Labour and Pensions (DLP)
- Live-in Household Domestics'
- Employees working on a Commission Basis

What are the special calculations for paying the National Minimum Basic Wage?

For Service Employees:

The minimum wage will be CI$6.56/hour. Importantly, employees are entitled to keep all gratuities they earn, on top of their regular wages.

For Commission Based Employees:

No more than 25% of the National Minimum Basic Wage (CI$2.19 per hour) can be counted from commission. Importantly, employees are still entitled to keep all commissions they earn, on top of their regular wages.

For Live-in Household Domestics:

Employers may apply up to 25% of the National Minimum Basic Wage (no more than CI$2.19 per hour) as a credit for accommodations and utilities. This means the minimum cash wage that must be paid to a live-in domestic worker is CI$6.56 per hour. This credit applies only to live-in household domestics.

What about household employers who provide food and other items in addition to accommodations for their live-in household employees?

The 25% or CI$2.19 in-kind credit applies to the provision of accommodations and utilities only.

Do gratuities count toward the National Minimum Basic Wage?

No.

Does the National Minimum Basic Wage apply to part time employees?

Yes, unless that person falls under one of the exempted categories:

- Self-employed persons
- Juveniles (a person under the age of seventeen years, who is required by law to attend school)
- Charitable Organisations (one accepted and registered as such by the Director of the Department of Labour and Pensions)
- Churches

How can I figure out the hourly rate for my monthly salary?

1. Start with the employee's monthly gross salary (before health insurance and pension are deducted).
2. Multiply it by 12 to get the yearly salary.
3. Multiply the employee's normal weekly hours by 52 to get total yearly hours.
4. Divide the yearly salary by the yearly hours to find the hourly rate.

This hourly rate must be at least CI$8.75. (or CI$6.56 for Service Employees)

How is leave calculated in relation to the National Minimum Basic Wage?

No employee, including service employees, household domestics living in the private home of the employer and employees who work on a commission basis shall receive less than the respective National Minimum Basic Wage when the computation of sick leave, vacation leave, maternity leave or any other applicable leave is carried out by the employer.

How does this change to the National Minimum Basic Wage affect overtime?

Overtime is always calculated at one and a half times an employee's normal hourly rate.

This means that if an employee is earning the National Minimum Basic Wage of CI$8.75 per hour, the minimum overtime rate will be CI$13.13 per hour. E.g. CI$8.75 per hour x 1.5 = CI$13.13 per hour.

If an employee's regular rate of pay is higher than the minimum wage, their overtime rate will also be higher, since it must be based on their actual hourly rate. E.g. If you are paid CI$17.00 per hour, CI$17.00 per hour x 1.5 = CI$25.50 per hour for any overtime worked.

The only exception is if an overtime waiver has been agreed between the employer and employee and approved by a Labour Tribunal.

What happens if an employer does not pay the National Minimum Basic Wage?

Employers can be fined up to CI$2,500 and/or a prison term of up to six months for a first offence.

For a second or any further offence, the penalty increases to a fine of up to CI$5,000 and/or imprisonment for up to twelve months.

Who enforces the National Minimum Basic Wage and how can violations be reported?

Enforcement will be carried out by the Department of Labour and Pensions, supported by a team of inspectors. Employees or the public may contact the Department directly at 945-8960 for inquiries or assistance.

Additionally, a confidential tip line is available at 945-3073 for anonymous reporting of suspected violations or breaches of the Labour Act.

Why is the National Minimum Basic Wage necessary in the Cayman Islands?

The government has a social and moral duty to protect people's well-being and prevent unfair treatment at work. A minimum wage helps ensure that the lowest-paid workers earn enough to reduce hardship and avoid economic vulnerability. It is a key tool to improve living standards and promote fairness in the Cayman Islands.

How was the CI$8.75 amount determined?

A 16-member Minimum Wage Advisory Committee, made up of employers, employees, and independent representatives, agreed on CI$8.75 per hour after careful review and discussion.

The Economics and Statistics Office calculated a lower limit of CI$6.44 per hour (based on the poverty and vulnerability line), while businesses said they could pay up to CI$9.00 per hour. The final amount of CI$8.75 was chosen as a fair balance.

For full details, see pages 10–12 of the Minimum Wage Advisory Committee's Final Report.
